

FACING DEATH,
HE LAUGHEDJohann Hoch, the Chicago
Murderer and Bigamist

JOKED WITH DEATH WATCH

Arose This Morning After a Night's Sound Sleep—His Execution Was Postponed on Hour Pending
Discussion.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—Johann Hoch, the wife murderer and bigamist, who was sentenced to be hanged today, arose at 6.50 this morning after calmly sleeping since 12.30 and ate a hearty breakfast. While laughing and joking with the death watch, he insisted that he would not be hanged. Attorney Comerford this morning filed a petition in the United States Circuit court for a writ of habeas corpus pending the discussion of which the execution was postponed one hour.

Governor Deneen, on the recommendation of the State Board of Pardons, denied Johann Hoch's petition for commutation of sentence to imprisonment.

LAWSON AND SCHLEY.

They Were Guests at a Club Dinner in Peoria.

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 23.—The eighth annual banquet of the Cereus Club, with Thomas W. Lawson, Rear Admiral Schley, A. B. Stickney and Congressman J. Adam Bede and Charles A. Towne as the principal speakers, was held at the Coliseum last night. Eight hundred guests sat down to the tables, while 1,500 persons, including many women, crowded the galleries.

Mr. Lawson, after thanking the club for the happy way in which it had smoothed away a misunderstanding which arose between him and the organization, led up to the subject of the insurance companies and the "system" with a review of the political upheaval in the various parts of the United States.

Mr. Lawson referred to the failure of the Devin properties in Kansas and to the speculations of Bank President Bigelow of Milwaukee as "system" representatives who studied their toes while speculating with other people's money, in the game of "heads I win, tails you lose." In this way Mr. Lawson led up to the exposition of his financial views, which are familiar to the reading public.

TRIED TO END IT.

Life Was of Little Concern to Fred
S. Chase.

Boston, Feb. 23.—Fred S. Chase of Lynn, who has been at a private sanitarium, attempted to take his life yesterday, and chose the big arena at the Harvard stadium as a place to kill himself by laudanum. He took three grains of the poison, which fortunately acted as an emetic and did not end his life. He was taken to the city hospital where it was said he would recover.

WOULDN'T LET KING
GIVE A PRESENTAlfonso Had Planned to Present Miss
Alice Roosevelt a Beautiful Wedding Gift—Detained by Force.

Madrid, Feb. 23.—It has just transpired that King Alfonso had ordered from the court jeweler, as a wedding present to Miss Alice Roosevelt a richly jeweled bracelet bearing the motto: "Without Rancor." Alfonso showed the bracelet to his mother, who tried to induce the king to change his mind and not to give the king insisted, however, until Premier Moret forcibly intervened and told the king that the present might be interpreted as an inopportune act, and that the government was unable to assume any responsibility in the matter.

Alfonso then insisted, after telling Premier Moret that he was missing the opportunity of proving to America that the Spaniards are as gallant friends as they are noble enemies.

THE BODY RECOVERED.

But Cause of Death Is Still a Mystery.

Berlin, N. H., Feb. 23.—Ten weeks to a day from the date of the disappearance of Archie Dugette in this city, what is believed to be his body was found yesterday in the upper canal of the International Paper company.

Dugette was 35 years old. His father, Ferdinand Dugette, lives here. The son left Berlin when but a boy and had been in the water most of the time for fifteen years, with headquarters at Lewiston and Cambridge, Me. He was last employed at Boston, Me., in December, as a line hound from there for nearly $75 a week. He came up here from Lewiston, December 14, in company with Louis Leveque, a meat cutter. Both men stayed at the Commercial hotel that night and roomed together. Friday night both stayed at the Commercial hotel but had separate rooms. Leveque remained here in Berne, several days after Dugette's disappearance and did what he could to try to find the man. He seemed to support the accidental drowning theory, as related to the neighborhood and near the Commercial hotel. He admitted that Delmoite had been drinking heavily both days.

Dugette had between $30 and $40 on his person the night he disappeared, and this money was not found in the room with his vest and other belongings.

KNOCKOUT PUNCH
WAS LACKINGBut Abe Attell Defended Successfully His Title of American Featherweight
Champion Pugilist.

Chelsea, Mass., Feb. 23.—Although lacking an effective punch, Abe Attell of San Francisco successfully defended his title to the American featherweight championship by gaining a decision over Tommy Walsh of Newton, Mass., in a 15-round contest before the Lincoln Athletic club last night. Both boys were strong at the finish, but Walsh was badly cut up about the face, while Attell was without a scratch. The champion was fast and reached his opponent frequently, but none of his blows had power enough to floor Walsh or even stagger him. Attell's most effective blow was a right uppercut to the jaw and left jab to the face, but his body blows had little effect on Walsh. In the tenth round Walsh drove Attell to the ropes, but the champion's clever blocking tactics saved him from defeat.

For the first five rounds neither did any leading. In the sixth, however, Attell began to land some telling blows and his clever foot work enabled him to get away from Walsh's returns. The champion rushed the Newton man about the ring and succeeded in landing a blow by a stiff jab on the nose. Walsh rallied in the seventh, however, and landed several good punches, so that the round was practically an even one. Attell, however, went after his man in the eighth, and after an exchange drove a hard right to Walsh's face which cut his lip. Walsh was bleeding profusely when the gong sounded.

Attell also had an advantage in the ninth round but in the 10th Walsh rallied gamely and chased his opponent about the ring. The champion's fast foot work and his clever blocking prevented Walsh from landing an effective blow. After this round the contest was in favor of Attell. He drove both hands to the face and persisted in following with several body blows, which Walsh seemed unable to block.

Attell, however, did not appear to have the power to finish his opponent. In the last round both mixed frequently and Walsh showed that he had plenty of reserve by landing often but without inflicting damage. At the close both men were strong.

Both men weighed in under 132 pounds. Jack Sheehan was referee, while Miah Murray and W. A. Pierce acted as judges.

HELPING FAMILIES
WHO LOST IN FIREInvestigation of Causes of Rutland's Disaster Falls Through Because the Citizens Will Not Answer.

Rutland, Feb. 23.—Business men and various societies here are taking great interest in the fund raising for the families burned out in last Sunday's fire, many of whom are now entirely dependent upon friends for a home. The committee in charge of the relief fund have raised over $500, many contributions coming from persons living outside of Rutland. Bishop A. C. Hall of Burlington has written a letter to the committee asking if there are any Episcopalians among the families who were burned out, inasmuch as he has offered assistance if any were needed from outside.

The special investigation as to the cause of the fire and the admitted inability of the fire department to cope with it ended yesterday afternoon. No members of the citizens' committee cared to assume the authority to persist in compelling some of the witnesses to answer questions, which were expected to reveal sensational testimony. It developed that the fire started in a rooming house at 22 Retreat avenue. Keron Moran is the dead man and his aunt, Mrs. Ann Farrell, and her daughter, May, were unconscious when found in their rooms. They were taken to the hospital and may not recover.

Moran had been ill for several weeks and was unable to help himself. He was suffocated by smoke before he could be removed. The fire is thought to have been caused by an explosion of gas.

FIRE COSTS A LIFE.

Two Women Also Narrowly Escape
Death at Hartford.

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 23.—One man dead and two women overcome by smoke was the result of a fire yesterday in a tenement house at 22 Retreat avenue. Keron Moran is the dead man and his aunt, Mrs. Ann Farrell, and her daughter, May, were unconscious when found in their rooms. They were taken to the hospital and may not recover.

Moran had been ill for several weeks and was unable to help himself. He was suffocated by smoke before he could be removed. The fire is thought to have been caused by an explosion of gas.

FRICTIONED, JUMPED.

Woman Killed at Bay City, Michigan,
Yesterday.

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 23.—Mrs. William J. Crosthwaite of Bay City, N. Y., sustained a fatal fracture of the skull yesterday by jumping from a closed car when the horses started to run away on Center avenue. Her death ensued three hours after the accident. The horses were controlled by the driver after they had run two blocks.

CRUSHED BY CARS.

John Pinkerton of Bellows Falls Was Badly Hurt.

Bellows Falls, Feb. 23.—John Pinkerton, a yard brakeman, was crushed between two coal cars here yesterday and seriously injured. In making a coupling he was rolled against a car standing on another track, receiving internal injuries and breaking several ribs. He was taken by a special train to the Rutland city hospital.

BUY BURLINGTON MILLS.

Stockholders of Chase Mills Will Pay
$240,000 for Cotton Plant.

Fall River, Mass., Feb. 23.—The stockholders of the Chase Mills yesterday voted to purchase the Burlington Cotton mills, at Burlington Vermont for $240,000.

M'CABE IS
AT LARGEMissing Station Agent Who Is Badly Wanted.

IS STILL IN CANADA

But St. Albans Deputy Sheriff Claims to Know Where He Is, Although
He Has Left St.
Armand.

St. Albans, Feb. 23.—Deputy Sheriff Jacques returned today from St. Armand, P. Q., where he went to look up Patrick McCabe, station agent for the Central Vermont railroad at Bolton, who had been implicated in the wreck of the New England States limited express at Bolton several weeks ago. Sheriff Jacques claims to know where McCabe is, although it is reported that he has left St. Armand, where he had been arrested. State's Attorney Sherman last night to complete arrangements for extradition.

St. Albans, Feb. 23.—Patrick F. McCabe, the station agent at the Bolton station of the Central Vermont railroad, who left this city Wednesday rather than testify at a railroad hearing, was found yesterday at St. Armand, Quebec, just over the border line dividing the United States and Canada.

McCabe, who was station agent at Bolton and in whose district the New England States limited express train was wrecked on Jan. 6, was accused of being responsible for the mishap. His answer was Louis Blair, a young boy of Bolton. Blair told the investigating commissioners that he saw McCabe set the switch indicating a clear track.

McCabe was called upon to testify, but he declined to do so. The commissioners on the ground that the answers might incriminate him. He was ordered to appear at the hearing Wednesday, and the police say they were ready to arrest him because of his alleged responsibility in the matter. When the hearing was resumed McCabe did not appear in an appearance and the authorities, suspecting that he might attempt to escape, planned to head him off before he could reach Canada. McCabe, however, succeeded in evading his pursuers and early Thursday reached St. Armand.

Several officers who were following the fugitive reached the town a short time later, but McCabe made no further attempt to evade them. Sheriff Norton went to St. Armand yesterday and he will make an effort to have McCabe held by the Canadian authorities until extradition proceedings can be perfected.

CHARLES E. KEENAN.

Death of a Montpelier Young Man of Pneumonia.

Montpelier, Feb. 23.—Charles E. Keenan, mail clerk of the Montpelier & Wells River railroad, died Thursday morning at the Montpelier House after an illness of less than a week with pneumonia. Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Albans and for the past 15 years had been railway mail clerk, running from Concord, N. H., to Boston, from St. Albans to Boston, and for the past three years between Montpelier and Wells River. He is survived by three brothers, Thomas W. and Frank H. Keenan, and Mr. Keenan took his usual morning walk and was seized with chills that evening and steadily grew worse until the end. He was born at St. Albans, May 30, 1870, and was a son of Thomas and Mary A. Keenan. He received his education in the schools of St. Alb